"21. The time lag in response to a request for an on-call close air support mission." (S)

STAG Comment: (TS) There is no information furnished in the various reporting systems that answers this query, however, the New Focus Committee reports informally that requests for air are generally met within one hour. This response time should be improved if CAS is to be effective. There is no indication in the SITREPS or MILREPS that poor response time has had any significant effect on ground operations.
